

Dear Seattle Metro Chamber Members:

This week, our political action committee, CASE (Civic Alliance for a Sound Economy) released its endorsements for the 2019 Seattle City Council elections.

Seattle needs elected leaders who are trustworthy and effective. As a former mayor, I know that serving in elected office requires engaging in constructive dialogue and making tough decisions. It's not about ideological purity or echo-chamber politics. It's about delivering effective results for the city and neighborhoods you serve.

Here are CASE's 2019 endorsements for the Seattle City Council:

- Seattle City Council Position 1: Phil Tavel
- Seattle City Council Position 2: Mark Solomon
- Seattle City Council Position 3: Egan Orion
- Seattle City Council Position 4: Alex Pedersen
- Seattle City Council Position 5: Debora Juarez
- Seattle City Council Position 6: Jay Fathi and Heidi Wills
- Seattle City Council Position 7: Michael George and Jim Pugel

You can read more coverage of our endorsements in KING 5, KIRO 7, KUOW, The Seattle Times, The C is for Crank, the Madison Park Times, SeattlePI.com, and Lens.

It's about results-oriented leaders focused on our city and our neighborhoods. Here are key points to keep in mind about CASE and our goals this election:

- CASE wants what Seattle voters want: an effective Seattle City Council.
- Our current Council has failed to make progress on important issues like transportation, homelessness, and public safety – and voters want to see a change.
- It's not about ideology. It's about results. Our goal is to elect people who are transparent, accountable, and represent their districts.

Thank you for your engagement with the Seattle Metro Chamber. To get engaged with CASE, please contact its campaign director, Michael McIntyre.

Sincerely,
Marilyn
